National Alignment of Vehicle Modification Legislation

We have looked at the proposal regarding national standards for vehicle modifications. The current system where there is no continuity between the states and territories is archaic, confusing and potentially expensive. Consumers should not be penalized just because they may need to change the jurisdiction that their vehicle is registered in.

The Animal Justice Party supports a federally initiated national certification scheme for all automotive engineers. A common sense approach to national vehicle modification legislation is needed as the current system is outdated and not working.

Kind Regards,
